Q: Dynamically extending the list of items in a DataGridView via Binding? I'm trying to add specific rows to a DataGridView that will be a part of a form. I'm using an edmx and building the data for the grid view programatically. Here is my attempt so far: //... private DataTable _dt = new DataTable("FirstName"); if (!_dt.Columns.Contains("FirstName")) { _dt.Columns.Add("FirstName"); } _dt.Rows.Add("..." "); //... // the grid is initialized elsewhere, so the below method is called // I also catch the CellEnter event and this method is called right after BindingSource _source = new BindingSource(); _source.DataSource = _dt; this.dataGridView.DataSource = _source; _source.EndEdit(); This works well as long as I manually add rows (on a button click, for example) to the data table, but I also want to add them programatically. I tried something like this: private void LoadGrid() { _dt.Rows.Add(...); } private void _source_EndEdit() { LoadGrid(); } The addition of the new rows is done but when I enter the cell values into the grid, the row doesn't show up, it remains the same as before the new row was added. Any ideas? A: When you add a row programmatically, it is no longer part of the data source. When the data source is bound to a form, then if you add new rows it appears in the form. In order to do what you want, you need to modify the data source. For example, in your LoadGrid() method, loop through the rows of the data source and add the new rows to the data source. during pulse trains at different phases. Representative sample records from mixed-phase data in the intervertebral disc cells treated with control conditioned media, 1,000 nm Pc pulses and 1,000 nm Pc pulses plus BMP-2 (20 ng/ml) for 7 days. Prevalence of Helicobacter pylori infections in Uruguay. The prevalence of IgG antibodies against the CagA antigen of the Helicobacter pylori infection was determined in the sera of 168 healthy patients without gastric pathology, and the presence of the urease gene cagA of H. pylori was assessed in the gastric biopsy specimens of the same patients. Both the prevalence of IgG against the CagA antigen (43.8%) and the presence of the urease gene cagA (30.6%) were higher in the patients with an ulcer than those with any other clinical presentation. The presence of the gene cagA of the H. pylori infection was higher in the patients with histopathological evidence of chronic or active gastritis than in those without it. Nevertheless, this difference was statistically significant only in the antral biopsy specimens.Dollar store chain Dollar Tree has emerged as one of the largest backers of Latino artists in the U.S. by committing $100 million over five years to purchase Hispanic works by emerging, mid-career and established artists, the company announced Sunday. Known for discount retail stores, the company began its support of Latinos in 2014 by sponsoring the first annual Art Rio, a major art fair in Miami and began to regularly collaborate with young Latino artists in 2015. In addition to the dollar store chain, the National Endowment for the Arts, the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Institute of Museum and Library Services are also contributing to the Dollar Tree Art Foundation. "The fact that Dollar Tree chose to support Latino artists who reflect the diverse cultural contributions of our nation is a historic move that speaks to the changing face of America," said Lydia Castillo, senior vice president of the Hispanic Association of Colleges & Universities. "This foundation is designed to launch the next wave of Latino artists in a way that will shine a light on the invaluable contribution that Latino culture makes to American culture and history, and the foundation will serve as a resource for all contemporary artists of color who wish to engage the Latino community." Art Rio was established in 2013 to give a platform to Hispanic-owned artists and to support the work of emerging Latino artists. The Art Rio features over 15 galleries. "Art and art history have always had a profound impact in the Hispanic community, helping us to understand the world we live in and giving us the cultural framework
